One of the many problems the media in Nigeria and developing nations contend with is the absence of current books and journals written by practitioners working within relevant contexts, existing regulations, and local environments. This Book, What They Don't Teach You in Broadcasting, is an experience-based knowledge sharing initiative with practical examples aimed at bridging the increasing gap between theory and practice in Nigeria. The book contains those issues, experiences and realities that journalists must encounter in the practice of the profession which we were not taught in school. It is a contribution to the efforts of our institutions and the media industry in building a functional bridge between the classroom and the field.

This well-illustrated practical guide is intended for teachers who are or who soon will be in charge of a school library. The manual was developed for Nigeria but can meet the needs of other developing countries especially in Africa. It comprehensively deals with furnishing, organization and staffing of the library as well as the acquisition, classification and maintenance of books and non-print materials. The application of computer services in school libraries is discussed.

The House of Skulls : Symbol of Warfare & Diplomacy in Pre-Colonial Nigeria Delta and Igbo Hinterland / Nkparom C. Ejituwu & Stanley I. Okoroafor

This is a study of the House of Skulls, one of the lost cultures of the Niger Delta. The House of Skulls was a European label for a house built by some Niger Delta communities with the skulls of their enemies killed in war. The case is used to argue that barbarism is not endemic to African Culture, but rather part of the primitive instinct of man and the House of Skulls, as evidence of human sacrifice, and headhunting in the Niger Delta and its hinterland in pre-colonial times was not worse than some of the practices, both African and European, which have been documented. In doing so the study provides fresh insights into the history of one of the lost cultures of the Niger Delta; a culture much modified in contemporary times.

Literature, History and Identity in Northern Nigeria / (Ed) Ismaila A. Tsiga & M. O. Bhadmus

This unique collection of articles on literature in northern Nigeria is in three parts. Part one presents an overview of the running theme, in which Na'Allah explores the theoretical relationship between literature, history and identity in northern Nigeria, using the proverbial story of the blind man who holds a lamp while walking alone in the night. Similarly, Tsiga undertakes in a long bibliographical essay, a notable survey of the relationship between literature, history and identity in northern Nigeria, chronicling the development of life writing in the region dating back three hundred years. Part two focuses on the relationship between literature and history in northern Nigeria and begins with the article in which Illah investigates the theme. He uses the image of the bus to underscore the point he makes concerning the uniqueness of northern Nigerian literature, which continues its journey, even without a spare tyre. Equally in this part, Balogun discusses Yerima's Attahiru, Ameh Oboni: The Great as theatres of colonial resistance; just as Methuselah also examines the heroism celebrated in Ahmed Yerima's Attahiru. Adamu revisits the trans-fictional use of the Grimm Brothers' tale in the early published Hausa written narratives, while Yunusa and Malumfashi examine similar historical concerns in Abubakar Imam and Sa'adu Zungur, respectively. This part concludes with Garba assessing the transformation of the written Hausa prose narratives into radio broadcasts; while Abiodun examines in a historiographic survey the various forms and composition of Ilorin music.

A must for every Muslim household, this best seller is a comprehensive guide to all aspects of Islamic Law including family relations, marriage and divorce, crime and punishment, inheritance and disposal of property, economics and much more. A comprehensive yet concise study of the Islamic legal system based on divine guidance. This book considers both the sources of Islamic Law and its application to all aspects of life, including family relations, marriage and divorce, crime and punishment, inheritance and disposal of property, trading and commerce, economics including the collection of zakat and taxes, international laws and jihad. This masterful work of Professor Doi continues, as it has done for many years, to provide an authoritative reference for university teachers and students, as well as being enlightening for wider general readers, for it is by the Shari'ah that the balance, effectiveness - and above all the ability to administer justice - of other legal systems can be truly assessed. A detailed manual on the permitted and prohibited in Islam in regards to most external and social matters, with this one dedicating a good portion upfront to the principles of jurisprudence, resulting in a handy volume that has both theory and practice of shari'ah.

Though predominantly on oil and gas law, this is nonetheless a veritable Reference Book on the oil and gas industry in Nigeria. It places before anyone interested in the oil and gas industry basic and critical oil and gas issues not in common circulation in existing texts on the subject. The book is arranged in such a chronological order, like reference books and dictionaries tend to be, that a lay person in going through it would now know how oil is explored and found, how oil fields may be onshore and offshore, how oil blocs are bidded for, how oil is drilled, including associated gas deposits, among others. The transportation of oil and gas, storage of oil and gas, refining of oil and processing of gas, marketing of oil and gas, the impact of oil and gas exploration, production and revenues on the Nigerian environment, politics and economy and a myriad of other issues are comprehensively covered.

Ethnosensitive Dimensions of African Oral Literature: Igbo Perspectives is a collection of nineteen essays spanning all genres of African Oral literature, from the poetic genre to the rhetorical genre. Part One of the book is introductory, and includes three essays that are of a general kind, touching all aspects of the genres, while Part Two includes six essays concerned with the poetic genre. Part Three, made up of two essays and concern the prose genre while Part Four, of two essays, examines the drama genre. Part Five, made up of three essays, addresses the rhetorical genre, and Part Six has three essays that cut across all the genres. The contributions examine the implications of ethnocentric imperatives of oral literature in relation to nationalistic demands.

Chioma Diru's Sodality: A Tale of Friendship is a children story. Like all pieces of children literature, it is engaging, humorous and educating. Written in simple language, it is as innocent as its target audience. The author presents an interesting storyline that addresses contemporary issues that will fascinate children.

As someone passionate about issues of children as a folk artist, I am impressed by the style of presentation of the novella. Through illustrations and humour, the author carries along children and elders alike – as the latter would ultimately guide the children in understanding the progression of the story.

It is natural for people to migrate from one place to another in search for the bounties of God spread across the globe. In the past, the Europeans came to Africa in search for slave labour. Later, with the invention of machinery for the mass production of goods, they jettisoned slave trade and scrambled for Africa to get raw materials for their industries and other resources for developing their nations. Presently, there is an alarming increase in the number of people migrating to Europe from Africa and Asia as refugees, asylum seekers and migrant workers. Could this be the beginning of the scramble for Europe by Africans and Asians? Time will tell. The story of Musa Danejo, the desperate migrant, is a fiction packed with facts about the push and pull factors responsible for the unprecedented rate at which Africans migrate to Europe. Contrary to his expectations, Danejo finds life in Italy and later in Germany more challenging than what it is in his home country, Nigeria. The story also reveals the dangers, challenges and risks associated with migration, as well as the measures for addressing the problems it poses. This is primarily for the benefit of both Africa and Europe, which the story portrays as complementary continents and, generally, for the benefit of mankind.

When the three sons of a dead octogenarian paid a routine visit to his grave, they were shocked to discover a mysterious letter, not only mentioning his assets and life experiences, but also containing his signature. Nabil, the eldest son of the deceased, picked up the envelope containing the letter, his hands trembling, and his mind speculating about its source. Could it be from their dead father? Could someone, connected to their father, have brought it to the grave for some ulterior motives? Nabil and his brothers didn't know that the shock they had at that time was just a drop in the bucket compared to what would come later. The letter, among others, requested the family of the deceased to publicize the contents of a document revealing his experiences on what matters most in the lives of human beings.

When Ezenwanyi, the revered Gynaecologist of the Private Hospital in Kaduna, Northern Nigeria, finds herself trapped in a tradition shaped by bizarre dogmas, she combines grievous decisions with hectoring pride. Ukwunna is too much of a sissy to protect himself from his wife, Ezenwanyi, whose firmness tames him to be submissive to her tall orders and battering. In silence he perseveres, frantic for a stroke of luck to stamp his virility before her, but she's oblivious to the method in his madness. The stunning teenager, Golda, shows up from Ezenwanyi's secret past and the family's allegiance crinkles severely as the Amazon, Ezenwanyi, entangles herself and the entire household in a gully of lies, treachery, revenge, chaos, bitterness, fear, love and more secrets. When a house inferno leaves 18 month-old Amarachi as the only survivor, she is adopted by the pair. She is the unseen eyes with a photographic memory that shares into the deep dark secrets of this regimented middle-class family. Will the prejudiced creed of stern Ezenwanyi turn out for the best or boomerang?

Aliya has to constantly remind her father that she is not a child but 'a young adult.' He does not always agree with her. But now that she is turning sixteen, he is sitting up and taking notice. The expected birthday card from him is replaced by a present and no holds barred letter – a page for each year she has lived. It chronicles the lessons he has tried to teach her and the wisdom he has attempted to pass to her. It unburdens the burning questions she has about life and sometimes show through the cluelessness of parental units. Aliya questions who she is and why she is; with her father as a guide on this journey of discovery.

An engaging coming of age guide on life and loving for the teenage girl.

"...focuses on the past and present of comparative politics and establishes the scientific justification for doing comparative politics, including why political scientists compare countries, how they compare countries, and strategies for choosing countries and problems of comparison. It also shows how comparative methods can help students understand and explain observed political phenomena in the world. It goes ahead to explain what analytical leverage can be added to a research problem by comparing one country to another, a few countries together, or many countries at once within the context of comparative methods that help to generate, clarify and support important theories and propositions of political science. This is done in a way of bridging the gap between European and African scholars. The book also offers an original interpretation of the knowledge in comparative politics in Africa accumulated over the years and thus, balances regional knowledge with comparative theory in order to address questions about African developmental trajectory."--Publisher description.

This book, The ghosts in Nigeria's foreign policy, looks at how State governments are gradually gaining momentum in shaping the affairs and directions of Nigeria's foreign policy at the center in recent times. It deals with how the roles of the State governments as component units of the federation affect, and or impede on Nigeria's foreign policy objectives.

Being the ghosts, it does not necessarily mean the states are in a state of apparition, but the book tries to capture a rather tacit role assigned to them in foreign policy by the constitution of the Federal Republic of Nigeria.

Furthermore, it adopts a new approach or rather a slight development of the concentric cycles theory-as expounded by Prof. Ibrahim Gambari, to explain the roles and actions being played by the State governments, which in turn affect the country's foreign policy either negatively or positively. This new or synthesized theory, is referred herein as the Neoconcentric cycles theory.....

Prime Witness Change and Policy Challenges in Buhari's Nigeria is essentially a product of the author's observations, exchanges with his various interlocutors in and out of government, and Nigerians and non-Nigerians alike, during the first year of the Buhari administration, 2015-2016. The decision to put this volume together, and indeed, the compelling reason for articulating the policy recommendations, critiques and views herein, derived in his personal belief that as a member of the Nigerian attentive public, we owed it as a civic duty to our posterity to speak up, regardless of whether anyone is listening. Such undertaking will no doubt, enrich our national conversation of critical issues and in the long run, vindicate us in the eyes of our posterity.

TO LIVE WITH HAPPINESS / Olubansile Abbas Mimiko

Nigeria : Safari Books, 2017

524p.

9789785478532

$ 45.00 / PB

Dr. Olusegun Mimiko competed in the gubernatorial elections on April 14, 2007, against the incumbent Olusegun Agagu. The Independent Electoral Commission INEC, departing from the norm, announced election results in Abuja, the federal capital, declaring the incumbent the winner. Mimiko contested this decision at the election tribunal and was adjudged winner at the tribunal and the Court of Appeal on February 23, 2009. The Appeal Court, like the court of first instance, cited massive irregularities in the 2007 election, and ordered that Agagu be replaced by Mimiko as governor. Mimiko then became the first and only member of the Labour Party to win gubernatorial office in Nigeria. Governor Olusegun Mimiko contested and won re-election on October 20, 2012, for a second term, making him the first governor in Ondo State to win a second term election. Mimiko stood in that election as the Labour Party candidate for Nigeria's Ondo State and polled the highest votes.

The court drama that pitched Dr. Rahman Olusegun Mimiko against Dr. Olusegun Kokumo Agagu lasted for two years, 2007 to 2009. It consumed the energy of hundreds of lawyers and the attention of millions of Nigerians. On the one hand was the Mimiko team, considered the under-dog in the struggle, with only the rightness of their cause as their succour, and their belief that somehow, God was on their side. On the other hand was the Agagu team, the incumbent power supported by federal might and endless resources in money, material and confidence.

This is very instructive, educative, revealing, empowering, challenging and demanding book. It exposes, x-rays and examines the concepts and meaning of globalization (neo-colonialism), Culture, African Culture and Values. It vehemently and intelligently expresses the danger inherent in globalization which is bastardizing, destabilizing, de-Africanizing and westernizing priceless African cultural values. Indeed, the work is a masterpiece – Anadu Hilary Ifu, Cmf.
