188p.
8772472634; 9788772472638
$ 60.00 / PB
406gm.

They Call Me Mama is a book about the weekly visits of Mrs Dolapo Osinbajo to the boys, in their hideout, under the bridge. For several years Mrs Osinbajo visited these boys and the unforgettable stories of her interactions are penned down in this well-written memoir. From the original meeting point, lovingly refers to as 'under', today, it has been transformed into the Muri Okunola Park.

The idea behind writing the stories is to share the reality of the street boys and men in Lagos state, giving them human facets the surprise of those to whom they are presented as demonised. They are the author's beloved children and they call her 'Mama'.

An Endorsed Biography of Prof. (Mrs.) Ebele Bridget Uzodike –

Attaining greatness in life is a continuum of seemingly disconnected but targeted activities that aggregate over time. Such is the story of Prof. (Mrs.) Ebele Bridget Uzodike. From the cradle, thanks to good parenting, she grew up with focus and commitment to whatever was important to her per time. Hence, she always aced her academics.

And when destiny conferred on her the privilege of becoming one of Africa's pioneers Doctor of Optometry and the opportunity to perpetuate the profession, she owned the duty with a full chest. Since then, her journey has been one of selfless service, commitment, impact, and more.

This book explores the life of Prof. (Mrs.) Ebele Bridget Uzodike from birth till completing her double tenure as the Registrar/CEO of the Optometrists and Dispensing Opticians Registration Board of Nigeria (ODORBN). In the pages, you will find high inspiration to lead a more impactful life.

Igbobi Boy is a description of golden years, not just for the boy currently living in an old man but for a nation presently in the shadow of herself. Lamikanra reminds us of an almost forgotten period in Nigerian history through his affectionate and passionate narration of his formative years. For those of us that were not around in the sixties, Igbobi Boy might come off as a fairy tale, especially considering the current realities of the Nigerian state but for those that were around, Igbobi Boy is the kind of book that brings back some fond memories especially for other alumni of the institution. Although the book does contain some typographical blots, looking at its cover once again, Igbobi Boy might actually just be a good reason to not judge a book by its cover.

In this instructive and far-reaching book, Dr Evans E. Woherem presents the technological antecedents of Africa in the context of the continent's position as an unheralded pioneer in technology. The author explains Africa's absence from previous industrial revolutions and advocates for the continent's advantage in harnessing the fourth industrial revolution (4IR). The book's focus on policies- government and nongovernmental-and other interventions that can contribute to growth in Africa will be of great use to students and policy makers alike. It also provides an understanding of the exponential technologies and what organisations, universities, countries, and individuals can do to master these technologies for the continent's development.

The book "The Hidden Gem: Success in Africa's Informal Markets" is based on the 14th Inaugural Lecture of the Pan-Atlantic University delivered on July 14, 2023, by Professor Uchenna Uzo. The author, who is a Professor of Marketing at the Lagos Business School, shares insights from his research on informal markets in Africa and how businesses can succeed in this dynamic sector.

In this book, Professor Uzo explores the role of informal markets in driving economic growth in Africa. He argues that despite the challenges associated with operating in informal markets, there are significant opportunities for businesses to tap into these markets and achieve success. Through case studies and real-life examples, the author illustrates how businesses can navigate the regulatory and structural obstacles of informal markets and create value for their customers.

Overall, "The Hidden Gem: Success in Africa's Informal Markets" is a valuable resource for businesses and policymakers seeking to better understand the opportunities and challenges of operating in Africa's informal markets. It offers practical insights and strategies for success, based on the author's extensive research and experience in the field of marketing and management.

Civil Litigation is a digest of the law on civil litigation, both substantive and procedural, addressing with clarity and conciseness almost all the questions a jurist needs to resolve, an academic to explain, a law student is seeking enlightenment on, or a lawyer needs to argue. It is a very useful and important directory of legal authorities, encompassing the extremely wide gamut of principles and judicial comments and applicability of civil law. It serves as a quick reference compendium of cases which can be cited by a Jurist who wishes to deliver an instant bench ruling, without the delays caused by and the tedium of rising, as well as serving as a ready source of authorities for the lawyer, under pressure in court, to back up his submissions.

The book Presents practical insights into law and practice of impeaching testimonial credit of a witness in Judicial proceedings. The concept of impeaching witness credit in judicial proceedings is just a fraction of the law of evidence, but its effect certainly underscores its importance in litigation. The book amplified the policy behind the law and practice of impeaching the testimonial credit of a witness and also Identified a few areas of practice that required to be reviewed. The book touched on areas not too espoused epistemologically as relating to the testimonial credit of a corporate body, an expert witness, as well as the role of pleadings in impeaching witness credit. The book is written in plain simple English for easy comprehension.

The essays in this book are very important because they are earnest discussions on the writing of an outstanding writer [Scholar-Poet, Professor Tanure Ojaide]. They do not in any way exhaust the perspectives on his writing. Neither do they discuss all his works. But anyone who is going to study his works henceforth will not ignore what has been said about him here. Let us note that those future scholars do not have to agree with everything that has been said here. We expect that every new reading of the author will give rise to new ways of knowing him.

Safiya Ismaila Yero's novel Naja is a coming-of-age novel chronicling what it is to be young, female and powerless in patriarchal northern Nigeria. Naja is smart, strong-willed and persistently hankering after more than being an old man's wife at age sixteen. A chance meeting with an older more educated woman opens up the world to Naja in very unexpected ways. This novel is an important one with its focus on contemporary northern Nigeria and its echoes of Zaynab Alkali and Mariama Ba. - Toni Kan, Novelist

CRYING CLOUDS is an unusual novel that centres on LOVE, MYTH and VENGEANCE. This inspiring and romantic novel walks us through the path of a poor family of females who possesses a supernatural once-in-a-lifetime GIFT, which allows them to make a wish when the clouds cry. This fiction novel follows 16-year-old Favour Idemudia, whose mother, Edosa, hides this family's GIFT from until she's 'aged', in a bid to help her not misuse it, as she misused hers in the past.

On the bucket list of a teenage girl lies so many wishes and desires, likewise pressure from her family members for her to wish for bastard wealth.

A New Lie and other Poems is a collection of poems, the first from a writer who is best known for her long and short narratives. Like every prose work she has produced, this collection represents the poet's commentary on three important areas of existence. The first part of the collection bemoans the plight of the woman who is also a wife and mother in times of conflict and other forms of uncertainties. The second part celebrates love and like the rose plant, not without drawing blood from its victim. The last part gives voice to the poet's worldview and philosophy. The collection provides a window of opportunity for readers to see her poetic skills, using a different genre to send across the same message.

The void of an ideological premise within the current generation appears to have been filled up by the recently published, ambitious work of Umar Abubakar Sidi's The Poet of Dust.

The collection is a grand statement of the arrival of a sage with a refined consciousness that both instructs and prescribes a sense of direction and purpose for the generation. Sidi's work is a grand theorization of poetry, representative of the ideological motive of the emerging generation both in its experimentation with style, form, and language.
