One Love, Ghoema Beat - Inside the Cape Town Carnival / John Edwin Mason
Cape Town, South Africa : Struik Publishers, 2010
128p.; 180 x 200 mm.
ISBN 9781770078161
$ 35.00

Each year, the coloured working class of Cape Town celebrates itself in a spectacularly exuberant Carnival. Historian, photographer and musician John Edwin Mason spent three Carnival seasons with one troupe, the Pennsylvanians Crooning Minstrels, becoming an 'honorary member' and marching in full troupe gear, camera in hand. He came to know several others, too, among them the Fabulous Woodstock Starlites. Mason's unique position - as an outsider with an insider's point of view - allowed him a singular documentary perspective on this inimitable cultural tradition and the people who keep it alive. He explores the Cape Town Carnival's history and documents its public and private sides from within the troupe, rather than from the sidelines. As a result, One Love, Ghoema Beat reveals aspects that outsiders rarely see - band and choir rehearsals, life in the klopskamers (clubhouses) and the making of costumes and drums. With several short essays and superb photographs, this title offers a comprehensive look at the minstrel troupes that are the exuberant face of Cape Town's Carnival.

Beeches / Helen Watson
Durban, South Africa : Just Done Productions & Publishing, 2010
241p.;
ISBN 9781920315498
$ 25.00

Sir Randolphe Browne esq., a descendant of the Roger de Montgomery who built Shrewsbury Castle over 400 years previously, had been a courtier at Henry VIII's court. His main concern was to steer his way through the upheavals brought about by His Majesty's break with Rome and his subsequent marriages, make his fortune and retire with his head still firmly attached to his shoulders. When the monasteries were closed down he acquired a stretch of land to the north of his native Shrewsbury. He retired to Shropshire on his majesty's death in 1547 with his neck intact, a knighthood, the fortune for which he'd aimed, and some very fine jewels that he had acquired along the way. Only then did he build the home he had long planned.

Unwittingly he founded a dynasty for which the homestead, Beeches, would be the anchor and focus throughout England's subsequent history.

Intimately Absent / Cas Vos
Pretoria, South Africa : Protea Book House, 2010
48p.;
ISBN 9781869193638
$ 21.75

The poet Cas Vos has already established a reputation with his previous collections of love poetry. In Intimately Absent he once again touches on the themes of love and loss.

In this remarkable collection, beautifully translated by Leon de Kock, he depicts the gripping tale of the doomed medieval lovers, the philosopher Peter Abelard and the nun Heloise, by way of a dialogue. The poems are based on the actual letters they wrote each other after they were so cruelly separated. In this dialogue the poet succeeds in making their longing for each other very real.

The series is concluded with poems that give voice to their child, Astralabe. In these he tells of his yearning for the parents he never knew. In the last section the sombre shadow of death comes to the fore, but even here love tempers all.

Close to the sources: Essays on Contemporary African Culture, Politics and Academy / Maurice Taonezvi Vambe
Pretoria, South Africa : UNISA Press, 2009
ISBN 9781868885497
$ 29.50

This is one of the first books in Africa to explore the status and critical relationships between politics, culture, literary creativity, criticism, education and publishing in the context of promoting Africa's indigenous knowledge systems. The book's main themes are built around literary culture, the role of meta-criticism and education in post independence Africa. While building on the theoretical blocks of Cabral's works, the book assimilates insights from some important sources of scholarship in Africa and creates space for itself to - revise and extend Amilcar Cabral's concept of the Return To The Source and introduce in critical ways, notions of inter-, cross-, and trans-disciplinary approaches to the understanding of African culture, politics and the academy.

Eyes Across the Water - Navigating the Indian Ocean / Pamila Gupta, Isabel Hofmeyr & Michael Pearson (eds)
Pretoria, South Africa : UNISA Press, 2010
ISBN 9781868885725
$ 35.00

As we head for a post-American world, attention is increasingly turning towards the Indian Ocean as the coming strategic arena of the 21st century.

Audacious Somali pirates astound international media audiences. The new economic superpowers, India and China exert palpable global influence. The two Asian powers squabble for control of shipping lanes and oil supplies and for dominance of African markets and minerals. Al-Qaida continues to operate around the Indian Ocean littoral in Tanzania, Kenya, Comoros, Indonesia and Yemen. As an arena in which these developments intersect, the Indian Ocean offers a privileged vantage point from which to track a changing world order.

This book captures the complexities of these emerging Indian Ocean realities. With a foreword by world-renowned novelist Amitav Ghosh, many of whose novels address the Indian Ocean, this collection of essays asks what the Indian Ocean means now. What are the links, circuits and exchanges that both unite and divide different regions? Is there an idea of the Indian Ocean?

Building on older traditions of studying the Indian Ocean, this book offers new departures. Much Indian Ocean scholarship focuses on South Asia or the Middle East. How does one factor Africa into this Ocean world? Several essays answer this question by examining interactions between Africa and India. Another theme focuses on islands in the Indian Ocean as a way of understanding key themes in Indian Ocean history.

This collection includes prominent scholars of the Indian Ocean and offers rich interdisciplinary perspectives that draw in film, literature, media, tourism, religion and music.

Philosophy

Understanding South Africa - The uBuntu way of living / Dr Johann Broodryk
Pretoria, South Africa : uBuntu School of Philosophy, 2010
203p.;
ISBN 9781920416324
$ 35.00

The title explains the diversity of South African cultures, especially the uBuntu way of living. Although South Africans consist of a diversity of cultures, they share common characteristics like humanness, caring and compassion to others..The international visitor may be astounded by this diversity yet commonness of the cultures and be tempted to ask: "What is it that makes South Africans tick?" In this title the answer is provided: the secret is the philosophy of uBuntu (the Zulu word for humanness), which is exposed as the main and unique South African life style, an understanding and application of which contributes to better intercultural, and even international human relations, which can contribute to the creation of a new global moral order! The ancient worldview of uBuntu has been transferred orally throughout generations in Africa, and its positive values ensure order and happy community environments. The practical philosophy of uBuntu only appeared in the written word in the early 1990's! The maintenance of the highly respected uBuntu values is one of the top priorities of the South African government, since uBuntu is appreciated as the foundation of moral regeneration.

Photographic Collections

The real soccer fields of South Africa / Christiaan Vorster
Cape Town, South Africa : Readhill Publishing, 2010
112p.; 254 x 203 mm.
ISBN 9780986975400
$ 41.00

The real soccer fields of South Africa is a coffee-table book of photographs of soccer fields around South Africa. The focus of the title is on the fields and spaces used daily by the diverse people of South Africa, and less on the large stadiums and soccer clubs. A selection of articles and special features focus on the meaning of these spaces and the game of soccer to South Africans. While the title showcases many excellent photographs by Christiaan Vorster himself, it is a compilation of images from a diverse range of sources: Kick Off Magazine, The DreamFields Project, the Stellenbosch Academy of Design and Photography, the Extra-Mural Education Project, Scott Smith, and Colwyn Thomas, to name a few. More than celebrate the foundation of soccer in South Africa, the title will contribute to South African soccer pride by donating 10% sales to The Dreamfields Project, and facilitate exhibition of the work from EMEP.

Rock shelters - Some cave and cliff structures in Lesotho and South Africa

South Africa : Vernacular, 2010

135p.; 210 x 245 mm.

ISBN 9780620456050

$ 32.50

This title is an illustrated record of cave and cliff structures built by people in Lesotho and South Africa. It documents a variety of structures built in caves or in the shelter of cliffs, as well as the people who inhabit/inhabited them. The latter include/d: Nguni and Sotho subsistence farmers, initiates, herbalists and traditional healers; European priests; European farmers; and holiday makers and hikers. The title's topic is unique, and it features some very unusual and interesting structures and people, many of them very colourful. It has a strong African heritage component and it is anticipated that it will appeal not only to southern African people interested in African architecture and ethnography, but also to tourists interested in African cultures. This title is primarily a photographic record of some of these structures and the people who once inhabited, or who still inhabit them.

God's Gangsters? - The Number Gangs in South African Prisons / Heather Parker Lewis

South Africa : ihilihili Press, 2010

161p.; 210 x 145 mm.

ISBN 9781920103118

$ 25.00

The number Gangs in South Africa's prisons are living legends and unique when compared with other prison gangs across the globe. They have created their own culture based on an idiosyncratic history and hierarchical structures that include invisible uniforms, laws and punishment rituals and a coded language that requires the indoctrinated to communicate through the use of metaphors and symbols. In prison the gang members dedicate their lives to a dangerous, fantastic mythology that condones the assertion of power through vicious acts of retribution. This new edition of God's Gangsters? Includes additional research material as well as a lexicon. The author writes of Mzozephi Mathebula, the magnetic anti-hero, whose spirit has haunted South Africa's prisons for over a hundred years. The birth, life, achievements and transmogrification of Mzozephi, as he adopts the title of Nongoloza-to become chief character in a tragic drama- are presented with insight and sensitivity.
