Anthropology/Archaeology

Paharpur : Anecdote to history / Mosharraf Hossain
Dhaka : Dibyaprakash, c2008
83 p. : ill. ; 22 cm
984-483-311-6
$ 8.00

[This booklet contains the preliminary data as regards the archaeological discoveries made till 2007 at Paharpur. All data were described keeping pace with the demand of the general visitors as well as researchers in this field of archaeology. Maps and drawings have also been illustrated at places where they are felt most needed. We hope, it would help all classes of people, both from country and abroad, to visit the relics lying at the site and within its horizon.]

Art

The art heritage of Bangladesh (with 536 illustrations) / Enamul Haque
Dhaka : The international centre for study of Bengal Art, c2007
408 p. : ill. ; 30 cm
Includes Bibliography and Index
Studies in Bengal art Series: No. 7
984-300-000894-9
$ 140.00

[This book at the initial stage was planned primarily to introduce the ordinary reader to the broad spectrum of the art heritage of Bangladesh. But on a subsequent realization of its possible future use as a hand-book representing the noteworthy facets of the arts of all ages, its scope as well without overburdening it with diacritic marks, arguments, references and foot-notes, Therefore, instead of an album of illustrations with cryptic captions, the book endeavored to become a cultural history of Bangladesh, the first ever to be published with an emphasis on art heritage, representing mainly the visual arts. The author attempts to present the subject in a form that is a balance between the art object and the historical milieu.]

[This is the story of an outsider who journeys through the sinews of a regimented society to explore what lies in the corridors of a controlled administration and to find out how the overwhelming politics in a so-called socialist country tramples down the hopes and aspirations of the people and wanes all human and social relationships. Personal pangs aside, the outsider happens to get involved in a number of situations that also expose the agony, angst and exasperation of the people, living in a command bureaucracy and economy.]

Bengal raag / Durdana Soomro and Ghazala Hameed
Dhaka : Writers ink, c2006
147 p. ; 22 cm
Includes Bibliography
984-32-2930-4
$ 12.00

[Bengal raag is a wonderful book about twin sisters and their childhood in Bangladesh, formerly known as East Pakistan. A blend of fiction and real life, it chronicles an important moment in the history of that region. Although seen through the eyes of children, it deals with adult and complex issues of family dynamics, belonging and separation amidst a gradual building up of social, cultural and political tensions.]

[Of rickshaws and rickshawallahs is both a paeon to the rickshaw and the rickshawallah as well as sobering look into their world. It is a novel attempt to portray the different facets of the lives of the rickshawallah and the different forms of the rickshaw across Asia. It includes the several genres that the world of the rickshawallah and the rickshaw has inspired. This miscellany includes, among others, stories by Rudyard Kipling and Humayun Ahmed, photographs by G.M.B. Akash and Tanvir, paintings by Farida Zaman and Rokeya Sultana, poems by Mahbub Talukdar and Kaiser Haq, essays by Syed Manzoorul Islam and Sudeep Sen.]

[This posthumous publication is a tribute to the genius of concerted non-political activism in filling the vacuum created in the essentially dysfunctional system marred by what the author has termed as "a closed shop trade union" syndrome that generally afflicts political parties. In such a scenario the period between 1994 and 1996 witnessed political brinkmanship pitted against forces of reason and moderation. The two papers collectively provide a first-hand account of that phenomenon.]
