The Institutions of Ancient Ceylon From Inscriptions
Vol.1. (From 3 century BC to 830 AD)

Author : Lakshman S Perera

This Massive dissertation, an exhaustive study of the gradual evolution of the island's institutions (political, economic and religious) beginning from the 3rd Century BC to 1016 AD i.e. the Anuradhapura period of Sri Lankan history, is an exceptionally important work. This pathbreaking dissertation was the first to use epigraphical sources in writing the history of ancient Sri Lanka. Equally important his interpretations of the institutional structure in his dissertation on early sri lanka continue to be part of the current historical debate in the country and many of his insights have still not been challenged.

George Keyt
A Centennial Anthology

Editor : Reggie Candappa et al..

Born a year after the turn of the last century, George Keyt, Sri Lanka's most distinguished and renowned modern painter, stemming from Indo-Dutch origins gave much time from an early age to drawing and the study of art, and developed a consuming passion for books and reading.

The spell of the ancient hill capital and its Buddhist aura soon came to exercise a powerful and lasting influence and was to provide both the literary and artistic stimulus living so close to the Malwatte Vihare. He became greatly drawn towards Buddhism and championed the cause of the Buddhist revival. He wrote profusely in both prose and verse.

The young painter also began to turn his back on the stifling values of the westernised milieu of the class into which he was born.

His explorations in Hindu mythology and Indian literature led him to close links with the cultural life of India, where he has lived for long and short periods from 1939 right up to the late seventies. To the Sri Lanka Buddhist sources were now added the compelling imagery of Hindu myth and legend as vital influences.

A meeting with Rabindranath Tagore in the nineteen thirties in Ceylon [Sri Lanka] left a lasting impression.

Many exhibition of his work have also been held in India, London and other European and American centres. His pictures are to be found in various museums and galleries abroad, as well as in private collections in Sri Lanka and throughout the world.

His work has been introduced and eulogised by eminent critics like Herbert Read, William Archer, Andre Chamson, George Besson, Mulk Raj Anand, E.M.Forster, John Berger and William Graham, while discerning critics in his own country have been quick to laud his imperious progress.

His fame as a painter has obscured his significance as a poet not so well known, there is the fact that he was one of the few poets of any stature in contemporary Sri Lanka. He has also proclaimed his precepts and practice as a painter in a few notable essays on the vision of the painter, and art in relation to the beholder and pervading reality.

The publication endeavours to survey the astounding fertility and majestic output of over seventy years of unceasing and untiring artistic vision of Sri Lanka's most illustrious painter.

Deshamanya Lalith Kotelawala

Author : Sreema Perera

This stately and once the tallest building that graced the city, was home to the prestigious Ceylinco group.

Commented the Late senator Justin Kotelawala on the day Ceylinco house was opened, the building personifies the unity, endeavour and enterprise of the people of Ceylon. It stands as a symbol of encouragement to the present and future generations of Ceylonese to achieve greater heights.

An assessment of contraband trade and capital between India and Sri Lanka

Author : Muttukrishna Sarvanathan

This is a quantitative estimation and a qualitative assessment of the contraband trade and capital between India and Sri Lanka. Contraband trade [Smuggling] is defined to include both technical contraband trade [false invoicing] and physical contraband trade [totally unrecorded trade]. The research questions addressed by this study are the following : [1] What is the extent? [2] What are the modalities? [3] What are the causes ? [4] What are the effects? [5] What are the non-economic factors? and [vi] What are the policy options that can be derived from the causes and effects of contraband trade and capital between India and Sri Lanka? Contraband trade in goods and capital are incorporated in the study. Further, this includes chapters on narcotic drug trafficking, and on corruption and law enforcement . This is an edited version of the autor's PhD thesis at the Centre for Development studies, University of Wales, Swansea .

World Bank and Neocolonialism : A socio-economic, philosophical and political analysis

Author : M.Sirisena

This book discusses the role of the World Bank that exploits the Third World in the guise of eliminating poverty and hunger. It also projects the danger of the extinction of mankind that is brought about through nuclear technology on one hand and poverty and hunger on the other.

This book also throws light on the fact that advancement of science and technology alone would not make the world a place suitable for human habitation and synthesis of Science and Poetry is a must to bring Head and Heart together.

First Rising

Controversial novel on post' 56 era of Sri Lanka

Author : Somachandre Wijesuriya

First Rising examines the anguish of a lower middle class family subsequent to the electoral victory of the first populist government of S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike in 1956. The decay and collapse of the family who lived in Kegalle district is portrayed within the background of turbulent post colonial history. The story ends on the eve of the youth insurrection in 1971. The novel is written on the eve of mankind entering the information Age when knowledge itself remains fragmented. Powerful media interests bathe a generation in trivia and bludgeon them to accept Brand Consciousness. First Rising is a reminder than in the twentieth century the social contradictions humanity grappled within two world wars and the first socialist revolution remains resolved in our midst. The novel is a beacon on troubled waters of the history of Sri Lanka after independence.

Walls

[A novel about a Sri Lankan family in Australia]

Author : Channa Wickremesekera

Walls is the story of the crisis in a Sri Lankan family, the Abeywickremes, who have emigrated to Melbourne to escape the uncertainties of Sri Lanka and to ensure for daughter Ishara a bright future. This short novel frequently funny, with a sharp satirical edge to its humour, but also sometimes emotionally poignant marks the striking debut of a writer of original talent.

The Protean life of language
Four Studies

Author : Regi Siriwardena

Combining Sociolinguistic and literary-critical approaches, the study illuminates the crucial role of second-person pronouns in power and personal relationships. There are three other studies in this book, focussed in one way or another on language : an inquiry into a little discussed subject Shakespeare's language of sexuality an essay on the Russian poet Pushkin which considers how he could create great poetry virtually without metaphor and a critique of the ideas of the dominant figure in academic linguistics today, Noam Chomsky. The whole book should be of equal interest to readers of literature and students of linguistics.

Sam's Story

Author : Elmo Jayawardena

Sam's Story is about Sri Lanka . It is narrated by Sam, an illiterate houseboy born in a village too remote for maps, brought to work in a town house where he finds momentary happiness in a life muddled by difficult days and painful moments. It is about the tears he shed and the days he wished he could forget, of the people he loved and the others he loved to hate.

The story reaches across Sri Lanka and gathers into its fold many characters, Piya, Sam's childhood friend, Kaluwa, the son of a rich Mudalali, Leandro, the Tamil cook, Lucky, the barber and Sam's two brothers and Madiya who join the army to fight the separatists.

This is the story of a country gasping for the midst of an unending civil war and the chronic trauma it creates in its topic, afflicting every life in every race, leaving none untouched.

Case Law on Civil Procedure Code

Author : Wijeyadasa Rajapakshe

The Civil Procedure code first enacted in 1889 has been, for 107 years the principal source of procedure which has guided Courts in Srilanka of Civil Jurisdiction.

In this book, the author has sought to provide an easy means of reference to the Code In the light of 107 years of judicial decision making interpreting its sections. A Large number of judicial decisions are cited in a readily accessible and digestible form.

This approach is, of course, essential if the reader is to understand the application of the law relating to Civil Procedure in Sri Lanka.

The evolving doctrine of legitimate expectation in Judicial review of Administrative Action

Author : Lakshman Indranath Keerthisinghe

Mr.Lakshman Keerthisinghe in this book has analyzed a number of cases in many jurisdictions where a legitimate expectation is entitled to protection. The Courts have gone further than mere procedural protection and actually extended substantive protection and actually extended substantive protection to the expectation. Mr.Keerthisinghe has referred to several local cases where the new concept has been discussed and the response shown by the judiciary. The research done by the author will be very useful to practicing lawyers as well as those who pursue legal studies.

Human Rights in South Asia

An Agenda for the Next Decade

Author : Ahungalla II

This report consists of three sections : The first includes three papers that were presented at the meeting. The paper by Ms Sunila Abeysekera of INFORM provides an introduction to the human rights scenario in South Asia over the last decade. Dr.Clarence Dias of the International Centre for Law and Development focused on the emerging issue of the rights and protection of human rights defenders, while Ms Emma Playfair of INTERIGHTS discussed the complex relationship that exists between donors and human rights organizations in the South Asian Region. The second and third sections consist of the survey report and a set of recommendations, respectively. The recommendations reflected herein are those put forward by both the human rights groups interviewed in the course of the survey, and by participants at the conference.

Sri Lanka : State of Human Rights 2001

[This report covers the period January to December 2000]

This is a detailed account of the state of human rights in Sri Lanka focusing on events which occurred in the country in 2000.

The report considers civil and political rights in relation to the integrity of the person, emergency rule and the jurisprudence of the court with regard to fundamental rights. Separate chapters are devoted to the freedom of expression and media freedom, the phenomenon of disappearances, migrant workers, the National Child Protection Authority, the right of franchise, internally displaced persons and the Fair Trading Commission. The report, therefore, represents an important watershed with regard to human rights in Sri Lanka.

Dilemma of an Island

Author : Merrill Gunaratne

(Served as Director General of Intelligence and Security)

'A sensitive insider courageously holds up the mirror with unusual independence, candour and criticality to the core challenges of a three and half decade long police and intelligence service career. The essays finely balance the razor-sharp critique grounded in first-hand experience with a professionals quest for ethically effective responses drawn out of disciplined analysis.

Towards substantive Equality An introductory guide

This publication is intended to provide the reader with an introduction to the concepts related to the issues of substantive equality. Violence against women and gender justice. It sets out the legal framework at the international level and goes on to examine national laws in light of Sri Lanka's international obligations. A discussion of the different forms of violence and the psychological effect of violence on the victims is also put forth. The final chapter contains recommendations and strategies for change which may be of use to those working in related areas. This publication is meant to arouse interest in the readers and encourage them to engage in further work and research in this area.

King Bimbisara's Chronicler

Author : Jason Siff

In King Bimbisara's Chronicler the author presents the world of India at the time of the Buddha. The reader sees the Buddha through the character of the Chronicler, who is assigned to memorize the Buddha's words for his King. In hearing the Buddha's Teaching, he wavers between belief and distrust, holding up a mirror for us to see the conflicts within. Then thirty years later, he is employed by King Ajatasattu, who took the throne from his father, King Bimbisara. This places the Chronicler in the midst of palace intrigue, the outcome of which determines his fate.

Globalization and Non-Traditional security in South Asia

Editor : Abdur Rob Khan

The present volume is the outcome of a preliminary exercise linking two very tangible phenomena of our contemporary existence. Globalization and non-traditional security in the context of south Asia. Globalization basically refers to a process, rather than a state of things or outcome that enables peoples, goods. Information norms practices, and institutions to transcend national jurisdiction through markets, technology interests and knowledge/information flow Globalization affects countries and societies differently depending on stages of development, motivations of state and sub-state actors. It shapes and also is shaped by the dialectics between state/sub-state actors and the international system, on the one hand, and those between the state and sub-state actors, on the other. So, impact of and response to globalization is an empirical question.

With the Bandarnayakes - Behind the Scenes

Author : S.K. Chandrasekara

This is an excellent presentation of a wealth of information regarding the life of the world's first woman prime minister for the first time that comes out from the experience of Mr.S.K.Chandrasekara, a former superintendent of Sri Lanka police service, who had the rare opportunity to be the long time Personal Security officer of Late Mrs. Sirimavo Dias Bandaranayake.

This is an ideal commemoration for the late grand lady which brings about very interesting, appealing and touching stories of this charismatic state leader who played a prominent role in local and international politics during her career. This is not only a speculum of the life of a reputed states person but also a reflector of the life of a veteran high-ranking security officer of Sri Lanka.

Sri Lanka The Arrogance of Power
Myths, Decadence and Murder

Author : Rajan Hoole

The book traces the connections between major events in post-independence Sri Lanka. It elucidates crucial aspects of the 1977 violence that have been papered over. The central sections deal with the July 1983 holocaust and the welikade prison massacres that still form an elusive watershed in this country's political history. Both published and unpublished materials have been collated in giving an account of JVP insurgency of 1987-90. A key chapter deals with the dirty war of the mid 1980s, where the UNP government's attempt at demographic transformation, with covert Western and Israeli assistance, plunged the crisis to a point of no return and irrevocably internationalised it. Other chapters deal with demoralisation in the security forces, political assassinations and the fascist drift among Tamils. A final chapter tackles the question of peace. Although written for the general reader wanting to probe below official and partisan obfuscation, the student of contemporary Sri Lanka will find the book compulsory reading.

Crime in Sri Lanka

Author : Nandasena Ratnapala

This book analyses modern crime from police Reports. The basic source is the IGP's Annual Reports. Crime is analysed in the background of Criminological research undertaken. The study provides a wide breath and a new perspective. Why crime is flourishing is well answered. The role of the police is analysed impartially. It is thus essential reading for all those interested in crime, particularly for policy makers. In the present context when there is absolutely no research on crime, this study is very important. It should reach the attention of everyone concerned.

Gender and Politics in Sri Lanka : Preferring Women

Author : Mario Gomez and Shyamala Gomez

Women constitute half of the country's population. Yet Sri Lankan women have never held more than 6% of the seats at any level of government parliamentary provincial or local.

Mario Gomez and Shymala Gomez contend in this book that the number of women in government is unlikely to increase in the short term in the absence of a temporary quota or reservation.

According to the authors no group defined with such precision can lay claim to such a monumental imbalance in representation. While women play a pivotal role in sustaining the family and society, they have few opportunities for influencing the laws and policies that shape their societies. A political reservation for women will ensure that women's voices are heard and their experiences taken account of.

The authors propose several alternatives for amending Sri Lanka's electoral laws, including proposing a reservaiton for women in the national list.
