'Buried' is an intimate look at the experience of one family pre- and post-Khmer Rouge through their family archive.

When the Khmer Rouge entered the city of Battambang, Cambodia, the Rama family, aware of the brutality of the regime, decided to bury one of their most beloved Items, their photographs. After 4 years of hell and the family's loss of the father, the Ramas reunited, retrieved their images and made the long and dangerous journey to the refugee camps of Thailand and eventually to America.

Through the family's own captioning of their archive we see the intimacy of struggle, loss and salvation.

Gender equality is undoubtedly one of the leading and most pressing issues of our time. Not a single day passes by without women all over the world fighting for their rights and representation in economy, politics and civil society.

Against this background, KAS and woomentum launched the publication, which portrays 21 successful Cambodian women. Together with HE Dr. Ing Kantha Phavi, Minister of Women Affairs and Ms. Ronja Kemmer, we launched the publication, which shall inspire women as men. We want to tell stories about life's lived by women, who faced many barriers and challenges in patriarchal and hierarchical societies and systems and yet overcome them.

Pham Xuan An was a Communist agent whose espionage adventures – under the cover story of a celebrated war correspondent in the Western media — were as brilliant for Hanoi as they were shattering for Washington during the tumultuous days of the Vietnam War. He has been dubbed “the perfect spy” and affectionately referred to by some as “the spy who loved us”. Not quite. Journalist and Southeast Asian specialist Luke Hunt prisms this story open. He knew and interviewed An for many years, along with the many friends and colleagues in journalism who knew him best in war, on the journalistic beat and amid the collapse of South Vietnam.
