["Anywhere" is a story about the life of civilians and conflict affected communities during the Martial Law in Aceh. One afternoon, Suryani and her fellow villagers were forced to leave their homes to a camp by TNI (Indonesian Military). Her husband, Mawardi decided to stay and worked in his garden. When TNI cleaned up the village, he was arrested, charged to be a GAM (Gerakan Aceh Merdeka, Free Aceh Movement) imprisoned. Yet suryani keeps standing on the position that her husband is not guilty.

This is an educational documentary on democracy in a pluralistic country such as Indonesia. Although the application of democracy is much more complex than any textbook can ever define, there are several universal principles. In this documentary, eight principles are discussed. Separation of power, parties and election, pluralism, public sphere and freedom of the press, democratic political culture, active civil society, the rule of law, and human rights.]

Rumidjah, a 62-year-old widow, lives in Jakarta / Indonesia with her son Bakti and her 11-year-old granddaughter Tari. Since the fall of dictator Suharto seven years ago, she has witnessed the country passing through a tumultuous period of socio-political chaos. Rapid globalization and democratization has spawned a subculture of criminality and uncertainty. Islam, the largest religion in Indonesia, is trying to maintain order and discipline and is becoming increasingly fundamentalist in its tone, which has consequences on the everyday lives of all Indonesians, no matter their religion. Rumidjah, who is a Christian, has had more than enough of the capital's chaos of these last years. When her son Bakti converts to Islam to marry a Muslim girl, she seriously considers leaving the hectic city forever and moving to the safety of the countryside. The one and only thing that still ties Rumidjah to the city is the care for her granddaughter Tari. She knows that for the eleven-year-old girl, there's no future in such a rural environment, even more because in the countryside, things haven't stayed the same either. Mechanisation has made it almost impossible to find employment on the farms and survival as an old uneducated woman in the face of such brutal change is difficult. Rumidjah manages to find small comfort thinking of her little granddaughter whom she wants to get a good education, and who will certainly get further in life. Through her faith in God, Rumidjah doesn't lose hope for a better future.

This documentary has won the top award from IDFA 2004 in Amsterdam, Special Documentary Award from Dokfest 2005 in Munchen, and Grand Jury Prize from Sundance 2005.]
