The magisterial two volume set of books with a foreword by Joko Widodo, the President of Indonesia, is the standard work on an ancient Balinese artform that has fascinated the outside world since the early 20th century. Richly illustrated with more than onethousand images, it represents the fruit of more than four years of dedicated work by a team of experts including photographer Doddy Obenk and designer Ni Luh Ketut Sukarniasih who have diligently researched archives and collections around the world. The main texts consist of an essay by I Made Bandem, a renowned Balinese dancer and scholar, on still living dancing traditions. This is supplemented by a detailed history, written by Bruce W. Carpenter, tracing back the origins of this remarkable performance art to the pre-Hindu era. Other texts concern sacred never before photographed masks and biographies of famous mask makers and dancers. The gallery, a separate volume is 360 pages in length. It is an illustrated compendium of Balinese masks from the 16th to 20th century sourced from great museum, institutional, private and temple collections with extensive captions and supplementary information. This book is not only for scholars or those specialized in Balinese studies but also a general audience including those interested in international performing arts, sculpture, Asian art and history.

As a former colonized nation, Indonesia has a unique place in the history of photography. A History of Photography in Indonesia: From the Colonial Era to the Digital Age looks at the development of photography from the beginning and traces its uses in Indonesia from its invention to the present day. The Dutch colonial government first brought the medium to the East Indies in the 1840s and immediately recognized its potential in serving the colonial apparatus. As the country grew and changed, so too did the medium. Photography was not only an essential tool of colonialism, but it also became part of the movement for independence, a voice for reformasi, an agent for advocating democracy, and is now available to anyone with a phone. This book gathers essays by leading artists, scholars, and curators from around the world who have worked with photography in Indonesia and have traced the evolution of the medium from its inception to the present day, addressing the impact of photography on colonialism, independence, and democratization.

Inter-regional trade has a vital role in the people's economy. Inter-regional trade can be defined as the trade and distribution of goods from one province to others in a country. The Different needs and availability of commodities in each province and also the relatively high fluctuations and disparities of prices of basic goods prices between regions are the driving factors for inter-regional trade. The publication briefly reviews the results of research on inter-regional trade using 2020 data. The information provided is purchases and sales between provinces in Indonesia along with a map of trade and the modes of transportation-used. This publication is expected to become a reference for the development of a more efficient trade distribution system.

Early age is a golden phase of a child's growth period where the brain's capacity is maximally developed in children's intellectual, emotional, and social dimensions. Quality early childhood development is widely recognized as the most important major investment in human development in Indonesia. Informing a quality gold generation, an accurate, comprehensive, and reliable data map is needed for stakeholders to determine the direction of the next development steps. Starting from this phenomenon, BPS tries to accommodate the need for early childhood data by making it happen in the form of the 2021 Early Childhood Profile Publication. This book is a publication that contains information about early childhood through various aspects according to the child rights protection cluster, such as civil rights and freedom; family environment and alternative care; basic health and well-being; education, use of leisure and cultural activities, and special protection. The data used in this publication are sourced from data from the 2021 National Socio-Economic Survey (Susenas), Susenas Socio-Cultural and Education Module (MSBP) in 2018, and secondary data from Ministries/Institutions.

Health Statistics Profile 2021 provide various statistic and indicator related with health sourced from National Socio-Economic Survey (Susenas) in 2019-2021. It was published once in two years and consists of several sub topics such as general population health, child health, women in childbearing age health, and health expenditure. In response to the latest health issue, Health Statistics Profile 2021 is taking up the information about the reason not to utilize health care because of the reason related with COVID-19. The testing rate of COVID-19 along with the reason why someone is being tested was discussed as well. Moreover, the descriptive analysis was presented with some disaggregation such as type of residence, age group, education and economic status. The information presented in this publication expected to meet the data needs for various purposes such as planning, monitoring, evaluation and research related to health.

The publication of Political Statistics in 2021 provides an overview of the political conditions in Indonesia by utilizing secondary data spread across various ministries/agencies. This year, Political Statistics Publication presents an overview of the political dynamics that occurred after the reform. These dynamics include a map of political power and the fulfillment of political civil rights as well as the role of women in politics and government. The map of political power tries to describe the shift in political power before and after reformation. Likewise, the fulfillment of civil and political rights which experienced very large dynamics after the enactment of the Human Rights Law in 1999. Not only that, the issue of gender equality that emerged after the reformation was also attempted to be raised by presenting data on women's representation in politics. and government.
