Architecture

Building Modernity: A century of Philippine Architecture and Allied Arts
Philippines: National Commission for Culture and the Arts, Museum of Filipino Architecture &
Art Studies Foundation, Inc., 2008
CD-ROM
ISBN-13: 9789718141199
$ 40.00

Building Modernity aims to present the landmarks of Philippine architecture in the last century, structures that have created within the framework of modernism. The different buildings presented here are emblematic of larger tendencies, movements, ideologies, and directions that have shaped the complex Filipino architectural culture in the 20th century. These modern landmarks are situated within the contexts of shifting social environments, from colonial to national, from national to global.

The Philippines Through the Lens of An American Soldier (1898-1907): The Harry Whitfield Harnish Photographic Collection
Philippines: National Commission for Culture and the Arts
CD-ROM
$ 50.00

This collection of photographs and perspectives on aspects of Philippine social life dwells on the vision of an American soldier as well as on the interdisciplinary outlook of critics of representation and its ramifications. Harry Whitfield Harnish was stationed in the Philippines during the American imperialist occupation of the islands. Returning the look of the dominant gaze of exploration and surveillance unsettles the imagination of conquest as it redeems the possibility of a reciprocal and resistive exchange of sights in the present.

Sakay / Julio Diaz

Philippines: GMA News and Public Affairs, 2008

DVD

Language: Filipino / Subtitles: English

112 minutes

$ 25.00

From acclaimed filmmaker Raymond Red comes this story about Macario Sakay, founder of the revolutionary group "Republika ng Katagalugan" (Tagalog Republic), who took up where the Katipuneros left off after the arrest of Emilio Aguinaldo in 1901. Refusing to accept the Yankees' plan for benevolent assimilation, Sakay (Julio Diaz) became the new leader of the Katipuneros and continued to lead insurgent activities against the Americans until his eventual surrender and execution in 1907.

Insiang: A Film by Lino Brocka / Lino Brocka

Makati City: Unico Entertainment, 2007

DVD

Language: Filipino / Subtitles: English

95 minutes

$ 25.00

"Insiang" is Lino Brocka's tale of one girl's coming of age in the slums of Manila. The little character played by Hilda Koronel, is a young girl who lives in a small crowded shanty with her mother. Tonia (Mona Lisa). Her boyfriend Danny (Rex Cortez) treats her little better than a sex object and her mother's lover Dado (Ruel Vernal), overcome by desire for young Insiang, rapes her in her own home. She runs to her mother for sympathy but gets rejected instead. Disillusioned and worn out, Insiang decides on revenge.

Tinimbang Ka Ngunit Kulang: A Film by Lino Brocka

Makati City: Unico Entertainment, 2007

DVD

Language: Filipino / Subtitles: English

130 minutes

$ 25.00

Acclaimed director Lino Brocka and screenwriter Mario O'Hara tell a powerful story about small town injustice. Junior (Christopher de Leon) is a privileged young man living in a small, devoutly Catholic provincial town. His father is a womanizer, his mother a materialistic shrew. His friends spend their days tormenting the village idiot, Kuala (Lolita Rodriguez), and the upstanding woman of the town shun local leper Berto (Mario O'Hara) as they go about their charitable work. Increasingly alienated and disgusted by the hypocrisy of the townsfolk, Junior finds himself identifying more and more with Berto and Kuala. He tries to make things right for these marginalized characters but his attempts are met with futility at every turn and inevitably, tragedy strikes.

The Forest: A Personal Record of the Huk Guerrilla Struggle in the Philippines / William J. Pomeroy

Quezon City: The University of the Philippines Press, 2010

 2. Philippines – Politics and government – 1946-1975
 3. Philippines – History – 1946-1975
- $ 15.00

While writing a book on the Hukbalahap, a wartime anti-Japanese resistance movement in the Philippines, William "Bill" Pomeroy met and fell in love with Celia Mariano, one of its most active women members. They were wedded twice –by a justice of the peace and by the movement to which they belonged.

The Forest tells the story of the two years 1950-1952-Bill and Celia spent in the mountains with the Huks. But more than a vivid account of the physical hardship of guerrilla life, the book is a moving story of their love and their courage in the fight for freedom.

Considered a classic with various English editions and translations into several languages, The Forest ends with Bill and Celia's capture. In its sequel, Bilanggo: Life as a Political Prisoner in the Philippines, 1952-1962. Pomeroy writes with the same passion and heart, whether about his commitment to the liberation struggle or about his love for his wife and comrade.

3. World War, 1939-1945 – Philippines
4. Philippines – History – Japanese Occupation, 1942-1945

$ 19.50

This book describes the experiences of the Lindholm family as they lived and worked with a very large Protestant Church deep in the mountains of Negros. Filipino families enabled the Americans to survive; and Mr. Lindholm continued to serve as a missionary throughout the four years of war. He was in touch with many Silliman students and faculty members-and with the guerilla forces which were loyal to the cause of freedom.

Looking Back 2: Dirty Dancing / Ambeth R. Ocampo

Pasig City: Anvil Publishing, Inc., 2010

v. ; 105p. ; 18cm.

ISBN-13: 9789712724367

$ 5.00

To the people who are blind to the lessons of the past, Ambeth R. Ocampo is the one-eyed king. Sure, he has his critics, but all the time, he is entertaining, fresh and bracing, not stodgy or stultifying like some academics with their voluminous footnotes and explanations. He always makes historical figures come alive, blemishes and all, and with his curious eye, makes our heroes very human and not the mythic figures that we want to make of them. Ambeth makes history enjoyable reading while at the same time makes it anchor us to the past and therefore, and hopefully, prepares us for the future.

Oyanguren: Forgotten Founder of Davao / Aida Rivera-Ford
Philippines: Mindanao Foundation for Culture and the Arts, Inc., 2010
105p. ; 23cm.

1. Philippine history (English)

$ 12.00

In 1948, Don Jose Oyanguren vanquished the forces of the fierce Datu Bago. He established the small settlement that would grow into the city of Davao. In doing so, he secured for Spain and for Christianity a firm foothold in Eastern Mindanao. Today, Davaoens only associate his name with the old name of the city's main thoroughfare; the memory of the man and what he accomplished is nearly forgotten.

This book aims to restore Don Jose Oyanguren in his proper place in Davao history. Basque though he may be, he deserves more than a fleeting remembrance in the city of his founding. His story – one of adventure, hardship, and love – is one worth commemorating.

Siglo: A Hundred Years of the PGH in the Service of the Filipino People / Jose Luis J. Danguilan, Rafael C. Bundoc et al (Editors)

2. Philippine General Hospital – Centennial celebration, etc.
$ 120.00

Siglo is a Spanish word that literally translates to the Filipino term dantaon or sandaang taon. The term also denotes a significant period of time. Overall, the book title encapsulates the hundred years of the Philippine General Hospital's continuing commitment of providing quality health care to the Filipino people. Just like any other institution, the PGH has had its fair share of triumphs and struggles throughout its long and rich history. What began as Dean C. Worcester's "crazy dream" in the early 1900s somewhat came close to realization when colonial government funds were allocated in 1907, that dream was indeed no more. From then on, the PGH carved its own niche under the sun – and the rest, as they usually say, is history.

In 2005, Rica Bolipata-Santos lost her father, suffered from her son's worsening condition, and discovered salvation in writing. In 2007, she won the Madrigal-Gonzalez Best First Book Award for her first collection of essays. According to the judges, her "provocative and well-shaped essays" were "luminous, little narratives."

In Lost and Found, Bolipata-Santos continues travelling the terrain of the mundane and domestic, still unafraid to find gravitas in the tiniest of experiences. In these twenty-six articles she wrote from 2005-2009 for the Philippine Star, Bolipata-Santos trains her eye on everyday things, using words to transform the ordinary into something revelatory.

The Shaman transcends the material through a combination of belief, drugs, and quite madness. Is that then what De Mesa intends? To entice us towards a similar transcendence? Not necessarily through narcotics and ritual, but rather through text, through provocation, through a consistent and insistent displacement, if not utter disregard, to what a reader might want to feel or think. In these works there is a strong, forceful hand, similar to that of a shaman putting one into a trance. The words are ones that we know, ones that we have heard, and indeed the worlds that are portrayed are not so different from our own. And yet, when these things mix, the words, the worlds, and the strong hand, the guiding voice behind these stories, we are driven to places that are strikingly different and at times difficult to endure but at the same time are places that we have been, or have almost been in, or could imaginably go to.

Meet Mia, a shy homebody who hasn't traveled anywhere in the country (let alone outside of it). After she is accosted by a fortune-teller who says she sees a boy in her future, Mia meets Leo. Leo who makes her heart flutter, Leo with whom she surprisingly feels at ease, Leo who lives in Bangkok.

All of a sudden, Mia finds herself getting on a plane to answer the question tugging at her heart ever since her fortune-teller encounter: Could Leo be The One?

After hours of chatting and sending numerous e-mail messages, Mia has to see him face to face or she'll never know the truth. But the very day she arrives in Bangkok, she finds out that Leo had to live for Bali. What message does that send her? And more importantly, what is she to do?

Join Mia as she takes an unexpected tour of Bangkok, Bali, and Vietnam to find her answers and hopefully, true love.

This book actually wrote itself, as the author states. It is a personal account that chronicles his wife's bout with aneurysm and its many life-threatening complications, which happened in India on November 29, 2008. This book includes a complete compilation of the daily email updates written by the author while marooned in India for 88 days, caring for his wife in the ICU of the Hospital. The daily updates reached thousands of recipients via an 'e-group,' which evolved into a prayer community that sought a miracle for his wife. "It is to the prayers of these people who received the daily updates that we attribute Margie's miraculous recovery," says the author.

Catholicism cherishes the sacramental manner of feeling, thinking and acting within the Christian praxis of the Faith. Such sacramental attitude takes the abiding presence of God in history and culture seriously, recognizing its epiphany in human life and acknowledging its diaphany in the world of the ordinary. In this work, married Lay theologian Jose M. de Mesa, attempts to make sense of the reality of "sacrament" in the Judeo-Christian Tradition within the world feel of the Filipino culture.

He first discerns and analyzes constant theological elements present in the Western Churches' cultural expressions of sacramentality. He utilizes these as guide not only to articulate God's sacramental presence through the Filipino concept of bakas, but also to ensure the fidelity of this local expression to the Tradition.

Rizal: His Legacy to Philippine Society was born out of the authors' collective experience in teaching Rizal in the academe. It is delightful to know and write the biography of such an exceptional man. His life has been highly documented of all heroes in Asia. Most of his essays and poems were dedicated to the Filipino youth, and so the authors hope that college students of today will be able to emulate our National Hero – his character particularly his respect and love for his parents, his compassion, moral excellence, unparalleled leadership, and his deep love of country.

$ 25.00

Few contemporary political figures of this century have been as controversial and outspoken – and even misunderstood – as Imelda Marcos, the former Philippine First Lady and widow of the late Ferdinand Marcos, who was the president of the Philippines for 21 years. Imelda marks the first time that Mrs. Marcos agreed to tell her story. This feature documentary details her rise from humble provincial origins with a combination of guile, ambition, and beauty to become one of the richest and most powerful women in contemporary history and one of the few known by her first name. She tells her story in exceptionally rare original interviews in which she is both vivacious and intriguing. The documentary also features scenes from her daily life and archival footage.
