This is a world of hills, forests, red basalt soil; of the tributaries whose upstream water overflows the banks in the rainy season; Coastal areas of Mo Xoai - Ba Ria and Can Gio have only developed into a regional trading port, never a famous international trade port like Oc Eo. That natural and ecological environment strongly influences the history and culture of local people. This place has long been inhabited by indigenous peoples, the owners of Dong Nai culture, the culture of the same time and has the same brightness as Sa Huynh, Dong Son; it used to be a world somewhat isolated from the outside, where it was less influenced by both Funan and Chan Lap.

When studying medieval literature in general and medieval literary theory in particular, it is necessary to put it in the cultural environment of that era for interpretation and evaluation. The interpretation of concepts and terms must follow the understanding of the author and the public at that time, avoiding the interpretation of modern people.

This is a valuable collection and review of classical Vietnamese literature. Reciting songs (lyric epics) along with narrative epics (Nom stories) are two typical genres for ancient - medieval literature, mainly in the 18th - 19th centuries. It contains the vast and varied content of the times and people, and as such, it is not only a form of literature but a form of content. The chants mentioned here carry the sentiments of the Vietnamese people of that century (war, chaos, separation, anger, grief, etc.).

From love for Hue city, architect Nguyen Xuan Luc has quietly found his own way, in order to find a way to preserve and preserve Hue's unique architectural types in the face of the risk of becoming increasingly lost before the whirlwind of urbanization with a thought: sketching out each line, shape and spirit of each old palace architecture, in order to save and preserve valuable architectural heritage values for future generations before they disappear. This work includes 72 carefully detailed and detailed sketches of the patterns on the fences, walls, and gates of the heritage system of Hue's palace gates. In particular, in which the author has carefully surveyed, systematized and specified 4 architectural styles of Phu De Gate, which are still distributed in the area of 15 wards and communes of Hue city.

The royal ceremony is also one of the factors that reflect the cultural imprints that contribute to the rich and diverse identity of the heritage of Vietnam's national costumes. Studying the decorative arts on royal vestments of the Nguyen dynasty is to find the quintessence, spiritual values, and aesthetic values through the expression of content and form. The royal ceremony of the Nguyen Dynasty (1802 - 1945) still has many historical sources, photographic documents, and preserved heritages. These are the works of art of the ancients with a delicate combination of decorative shaping and sewing, embroidery and weaving techniques, creating a special space bearing the imprint of the royal fine arts of the Nguyen Dynasty.

The people of Annam always believe that death does not mean the end. The dead are still living in the afterlife to bless the people living in this world to have peace and prosperity, to have children and grandchildren, and to have all the happiness. And for those wishes to come true, they through characters and objects act as mediators to connect them with the afterlife, and incantations are one of them. This book is designed to help the curious understand some of the practices of incantation, explaining some of the tricks used by scammers.

Kim Hoang folk paintings were formed in the second half of the 18th century, originating from Kim Hoang village, Hanoi city. Like some other painting lines, Kim Hoang paintings have familiar themes with rural people's life with genres such as Tet paintings, worship paintings, decoration, blessings... Kim Hoang paintings have their own unique features in terms of layout and color, so they are often called "red paintings" (printed on paper with a red background). The book helps readers know the history of development, the rise and fall of the painting village and the genre of Kim Hoang paintings.

China is a large country in the world, with a rich historical and cultural tradition, with Chinese civilization being one of the most brilliantly developed civilizations in the ancient and medieval world and adjacent to 14 nation. The study of land border relations between China and neighboring countries not only has scientific meaning, but also, through it, contributes to a clearer understanding of the policies and actions of the Beijing government in border-territorial relations with neighboring countries. Researches and publications on this issue will be a historical contribution in the struggle for peace and friendship in border areas on land and at sea between countries of the world and the region in general, as well as between China and Vietnam in particular.

"On Duke Vu Kham Lan: Life, Career, and Legacy" is the most complete publication of primary documents related to Vu Kham Lan, including many precious documents that are still little known. The documents are decoded, translated with the highest effort. At the same time, from "deep reading", intertextual reading, the book reconstructs relatively clearly the "portrait" of the Confucian - scholar - official Vu Kham Lan, as well as partially repositioning his position in the "picture" of Dai Viet in the 18th century in particular and in the history of Vietnamese culture in general.

The Grace of Kings on Imperial Archives of Nguyen Dynasty introduces readers to the forms of imperial approval of the kings of the Nguyen Dynasty, contributing to providing more information about the guiding ideology of the emperors of that period, as well as the way to approve the written royal document in the Nguyen dynasty's clerical regime. The book includes 181 typical editions selected from the original 773 volumes of the Imperial Archives to introduce readers to the rich and unique forms of imperialism on the administrative documents of ten of the thirteen Nguyen Dynasty kings. The content of the documents reflects all aspects of Vietnamese society (1802-1945), especially during the period when the Nguyen Dynasty was still an independent dynasty (1802-1884). From 1884 to 1945, the Nguyen Dynasty lost its real power and Vietnam fell under French colonial rule. Therefore, the grace of the Nguyen kings on imperial archives during this period was not as rich and diverse in form and content as the previous kings.

Nguyen Dinh Chieu is one of the great poets of the nation. Since the August Revolution, and especially since 1975, his works have been introduced and popularized throughout the country. But most of these works have not been done rigorously, because in fact historical data is still insufficient, especially the necessary Nom versions. For many reasons, understanding his life and career, talents and personality over the past century is still incomplete.

Among the Vietnamese intellectual patriots of the late 19th century, Nguyen Lo Trach appeared as a bright star next to the reformist Nguyen Truong To. Nguyen Lo Trach was not an official, and his literary compositions were few. Nguyen Lo Trach's biggest career is writing hearings. Hearing in the old sense is a word that refers to documents such as petitions, books, and letters submitted to the court presenting something about the national plan of the people, especially the issue of national reform.

The book consists of 62 variegated articles that span a wide range of topics, the same street, that person... but the stories are thought to be trifling, seeming to have the necessary sedimentation to become an aged wine full of flavour, but not harsh. Reading Nguyen Viet Ha's magazine, you can encounter a lot of East-West stories, extremely charming "neo-ancient" phases, but there is another way of reading - that is reading a "voice" - "voice of the street".

Tình yêu của Thánh/Nguyễn Mạnh Tuấn

Besides the love of the main couple, the story also revolves around many other attractive supporting characters, about love, sex and the glamorous life of the showbiz world. Two completely opposite pictures are drawn in Nguyen Manh Tuan's novel, one side is the scene of luxury and debauchery of the rich, the other is the scene of a poor school in mountainous areas, and cancer patients who are taking the last breath. This can be said to be the most attractive and worth reading novel by Nguyen Manh Tuan.

Phan Khoi (1887-1959) is one of the great names among the Vietnamese journalism, literature and thought activists in the 20th century. He grew up in a successful Confucian family for many generations, but gave up the path of philanthropy to participate in the work of writing and journalism, "serving the country in terms of culture". The book "Get to know the author Phan Khoi" by literary researcher Lai Nguyen An summarizes the research work on Phan Khoi's life and career with a flexible structure and is easily accessible to a wide range of readers, including those who are just starting to learn about this author. Through learning about the life and career of a great author of the era, the book also opens up a picture of the press and national literature in the 20th century.

The book gives readers specific and detailed perspectives on the missionary process of Western missionaries when they arrived in Vietnam and China during the 16th - 18th centuries. How have the religious orders with the mission from the Holy See influenced the classes and people's lives of the two countries Vietnam - China? What is the attitude of the ruling classes of the two countries towards this new type of religion? For or against? All have been clearly mentioned in this book by Dr. Truong Anh Thuan. Besides, why do missionaries choose fields of science and technology such as astronomy or medicine to "befriend" with the ruling authorities of two countries, Vietnam and China? Is there a political purpose or simply out of a desire to borrow power from them to carry out the process of "Christianization"? Readers, let's learn more about the publication to get the most accurate answer!

Currently, we are living in the era of digital technology 4.0. If things go back in time, back to the childhood of people living in the South Central Coast or the South, in the 80s of the last century, when there was no mobile phone, no computer, no iPad, no Internet, of course no computer games, no social networks, and even TV was yet to be popular. We would probably feel that childhood at that time was very tasteless and bland. Quite the contrary, the childhoods of people living at that time was blessed with the opportunity to experience folk games, games devised by the group themselves, naughty, mischievous but very witty, and loving games such as fake military battles, spindle fight, hunting wild chickens... The memories are deeply ingrained in the subconsciousness of these people, who now have grown to be uncles and grandparents.

Southern folk poems and folk songs are different from Northern and Central Vietnamese folk music in that they have specific features of the region. In couple love, if Northern folk songs have very loving words such as "minh - ta", "ta - minh", then in the South, the words "qua-bau" are very affectionate. In Southern folk songs, people are always abstained from the kings and the elders in the family. This does not happen in the folk songs of the North. Also, Southern folk songs often use a lot of Chinese sentences, characters in Chinese stories as well as singing and responding.

The Vietnamese people have experienced thousands of large and small battles during the process of building and defending the country. Small but heroic, our forefathers made many glorious feats, overcoming all difficulties and hardships to regain independence and freedom for the nation. And one of the most important but least known feats is probably the feat of the Vietnamese intelligence force. The book is about the silent sacrifices and glorious feats of the precious political-military legacy of the brilliant General Dang Tran Duc (Mr. Ba Quoc).

Try to find out, is there any country in the world where people used to use chopsticks in meals without ever using kanji? I try to change the question again, try to find out, is there any country in the world where people used kanji in all activities but still eat with hand or use cutlery? In fact, the two questions above are only one, showing the close connection between the kanji culture and the culture of using chopsticks....Khmer, Malay, Thai and Burmese etc. do not eat rice with chopsticks even though they still live in wet rice fields. Living at rice fields is not the main reason for using chopsticks. The main thing is because they are not influenced by the Chinese culture, including the custom of using chopsticks during meals...

Since 1896, football first fell in love with the S-shaped land and gradually won the hearts of the Vietnamese people. And right on the land of Ha Thanh, a thousand years of civilization, football also occupies a certain position. The first teams appeared, coming from the popular class, bringing football closer to the fans, igniting the fire of passion on the pitch. Ha Thanh football also has its own history, a development path through the ages. Teams such as The Cong, Hanoi Police, General Department of Railways, Military Region of the Capital ... are remembered by many fans. Strikers, coaches, commentators... and even enthusiastic fans of Ha Thanh football have been partly recorded in the book Ha Thanh football gossip. Wandering about in a whole journey of joy and hardship, but always devoted to passion and love for football.

In particular, the research objective of the topic is to clarify the theoretical and practical basis for legal assurance of the rights of domestic migrant workers in Vietnam today. From there, it proposes viewpoints and solutions to improve the legal guarantee for the implementation of the rights of domestic migrant workers in Vietnam today. From the analysis of ways to ensure the rights of domestic migrant workers in China and India, the author has made some suggestive recommendations for Vietnam such as: it is necessary to improve the legal regulations to recognize the equality of rights between domestic migrant workers and native workers; reduce administrative conditions that prevent workers from accessing social security rights; promote the participation of social organizations in providing support services to internal migrant workers, especially legal support services.
