Imaging Muslim Women in Indonesian Ramadan Soap Operas / Rachmah Ida
Bangkok: Silkworm Books, 2009
xii. 74p,; 21cm
ISBN-13: 9789749511077
Islam in Southeast Asia: Views from Within $ 12.95
<http://www.marymartin.com/web/product?pid=114239>

Each year during the Islamic holy month of Ramadan, Indonesian television stations adopt Muslim themes in virtually all of their programs, ranging from religious teaching to quiz programs to cooking shows to soap operas. The latter are Muslim-themed serials featuring melodramatic stories about upper-and middle-class women with an emphasis on prayer and devoutness.

This study investigates how these serials have contributed to constructing images of contemporary Islamic culture and urban Muslim women in Indonesia. Using textual analysis and audience ethnography, the author shows how women and Islam have been “framed” by the media in transitional Indonesia.

Perspectives on Polygamy in Post-Reform Indonesia / Wenty Marina Minza

Polygamy emerged as a political issue in Indonesia following the 1998 reformation that ushered in a period of social change. This period has been characterized by challenges to established institutions and values, particularly from diverse social groups and individuals who have strong views on the practice of polygamy. Various groups emerged in an effort to gain influence within an unstable society, and polygamy was part of this social foment.

Based on interviews with over 3,500 people from Muslim communities in Asia, Speaking Up: Muslim Views on HIV & AIDS provides a compelling and timely insight into HIV in the Islamic world

Presenting extensive research from Bangladesh, Cambodia, India and Thailand, the book addresses a major information gap and is a key to understanding and responding to HIV & AIDS in Muslim communities.

It provides detailed findings on contentious topics such as Islam and condom use, gender and HIV & AIDS prevention, and the persistent stigma surrounding the epidemic in some Muslim communities.
